Training Course Overview

Developing Strategies, Risk Analysis, Negotiating, Budgeting and Cost Control are all essential skills for managers who are dedicated to delivery top performance and making a big contribution to their organisation. The business environment continues to be very uncertain and turbulent, placing great demands on top management and middle management to think long term but act short term. Managers who are agile and able to adapt to frequent change are at a premium. Hence, the skills learned during this 10-day Anderson training course offer a structured and coherent framework to meet the day-to-day challenges and longer-term responsibilities faced by all professionals.
