

Designing & Implementing Competency Frameworks & Assessment Tools

Maximising the Return on Human Investment

TRAINING COURSE OVERVIEW

Do you struggle with how to measure the value received from your human resources bill? Do you rely upon the varied opinions and judgement of others to determine success and effectiveness? The Return on Investment expected from the most expensive asset an organisation has, is too valuable to leave to chance, this programme provides participants with a process for defining and measuring the contribution of managers and employees against the requirements of the organisation. With the added value of providing a skills audit, skill and performance gaps, talent and potential spotting and evidence for structured rewards and recognition schemes.

Experiencing and working with everyday examples drawn from a wide range of organisations, competencies; models and tools of how to turn subjective judgement into tangible benefits, you will return to work with the clarity required to change the definition of "Good" into specific actions which deliver.
