Training Course Overview

Your business has structures, hierarchies and its unique, hard-to-define, “culture” – you can draw the structure, explain the hierarchies and maybe get a grip on culture, but if you don’t understand business processes, you will not optimize outputs or manage change successfully!

This Anderson training course explains the business process perspective and how to apply it to improve productivity, profitability and employee satisfaction. It is a different paradigm for understanding what makes your business “tick”. This intensive training course uses a “model company” case study showing how to apply the Business Process paradigm, analyzing both the “hard” – operational – and the “soft” – cultural – factors, enabling you to deliver profitable change in your enterprise.

Training Course Objectives

By attending this Anderson training course, delegates will be able to:

- Understand the distinctive business process perspective and “toolkit”
- Analyze their businesses from a process perspective
- Diagnose problems and identify improvement opportunities
