Online Training Course Overview

Do you face the challenge of having to create tomorrow's organization out of today's organization against a background of rapid change – in markets, technology, business processes and risky business conditions?

The 5-day Anderson online training course "Certificate in Strategic Enterprise Analysis and Consulting Skills" has been specially designed to develop a new type of manager in the critical competences of business analysis and effective consultancy in priority activities that will enable an organization to achieve, sustain and enhance competitive advantage and profitable growth. This is both an intensive introduction to leading-edge techniques of business analysis and also an updating mechanism for advancing the practical skills that are required in strategic consultancy – either as an internal specialist within your current organization or as an external consultant. This highly participative training course will greatly advance your personal development in these two key aspects of managerial activity.
